CHAP Review and Approval Committee

Site Review preparation and implementation

1.	Training centers come up for review every five years.	This year Training Center
2.	In the September preceding the review year, RAC sends a letter to the training center. See examples.	Date letter sent:
	RAC chooses Review Team members: - three members and two back-up members - choose team leader and co-leader. The co-leader will lead next year's site review. One of these should be a training center member. - at least two training center persons, O Recommendation: one member be from the next training center to be reviewed - only one official team member allowed from any or guests may accompany the team at their own experientation purposes and participate in the review but will have no vote in official decisions. -site review expenses of team members will be paid. In December, the Training Center Representative.	ense for activities suggests at least 2 site visit dates. Site Review dates are chosen by consensus with Training Center representative and Review Team Members. The site visit dates need to include adequate opportunities for observation of classes, skills labs, and clinic experiences. Because certification expires at the end of the calendar year, it is recommended that the review be scheduled within the first half of the year. This allows time for any unforeseen events. RAC Chair sends out a letter/e-mail to TC and Site team members that includes: dates of review, schedule requirements, deadline for notebook, RAC Standards, and CHA Education Program Evaluation Checklist. - 15. Team members should divide the Checklist items.
 - -Recommended activities:
 - tour of student housing, Training Center, and all clinical sites
 - review lesson plan files
 - observe lectures
 - observe skills practice
 - observe clinical training
 - interview students (see examples attached)
 - interview trainers (see examples attached) & office staff
 - interview medical director
 - on-site review of all items on checklist
 - Notify TC as issues come up so they have time to rectify/clarify.
 - It is useful for the Review Team to schedule time together for a team meeting at the start of the visit and daily.
 - During the site review, stay in communication with Training Center staff; missing items may often be easily located.

- 16. The first draft of the written report should be completed on site before leaving. It should include details of any deficient items noted on the CHA Program Evaluation Checklist. It should note whether those items are "Essential" or "Should Comply" items. The report should also note any areas of excellence noted during the review. The draft should be reviewed by TC coordinator for input before being finalized. -Refer to "Instructions for RAC Education Program Evaluation Checklist" for details on how to handle "Essential" and "Should Comply" items that are found lacking.
 - Refer to the RAC Standards for detailed explanations of start-up approval, provisional approval, and full approval.
 - If any questions arise, consult with RAC Chair by telephone.
- 17. Plan to have a preliminary verbal report for the Training Center staff at the end of the visit including review of the draft site review report and Program Evaluation Checklist. At the discretion of the Training Center Coordinator, attendance may include other staff such as CEO, Tribal Health Director.
